

LEAGUE CAN'T HELP IRISH, HUGHES SAYS

Contradicts Assurance Given by Wilson and Charges Political Play

GIVES ROOT MUCH CREDIT

New York, Sept. 30.—Former Judge Nathan L. Miller, Republican candidate for governor, wound up his present speaking tour in New York city yesterday with two speeches in Manhattan and one in the Bronx. He spoke at noon at the Arkwright Club on Broadway, and last night at the Union League, where he was the guest of the club at dinner.

Charles F. Hughes, who presided at the Union League Club dinner, dissected President Wilson's statement of Tuesday and said that the Irish question entirely contradicts the President's assurance to the public, was not eligible to settlement under the League of Nations covenant. The latest pronouncement from the White House, he indicated, resolves itself, therefore, into nothing more or less than a political play to win the Irish vote and upon a promise which is incapable of fulfillment.

Democrats Dodge Article X

Mr. Hughes assailed the Democratic orators for dodging the Article X issue, though the forthcoming election, according to Democratic description, is to be a "solemn referendum" on that very question. He declared that "whatever gain there has been in the recent endeavor to establish institutions looking to international law is due not to any act of this administration, but to a great Republican statesman, Mr. Root."

Judge Miller's speech at the club was in part as follows:

"The governor takes issue with me for suggesting that the national issues are paramount in this campaign. Does he wish to avoid them? And does he hope to escape responsibility for San Francisco? Is he preparing to throw the Democratic national ticket overboard?"

"It is more important that the issue of the Wilson League of Nations be settled rightly than that either Governor Smith or I should be elected governor. I am against the Wilson League. The governor, in welcoming the President home, July 9, 1919, is reported to have said that he had returned with a treaty of peace that is worthy of the dignity and honor of this country. Does he still think so? I ask him to tell the people of this state whether he is now for the Wilson League."

Would Enforce Prohibition

Speaking before the Arkwright Club in the afternoon, Judge Miller launched an attack on the Wilson League and declared that Article X would compel the United States to send her young manhood abroad to fight with or without consent of Congress.

At a meeting of Republican county chairman of eastern New York earlier in the day, Mr. Miller said he favored passage of a state act to enforce the prohibition amendment.

"Flagrant and open violations of law now going on which could not possibly occur without the connivance of officials charged with law enforcement. The Republican party must stand, as it has always stood, for enforcement of the will of the people when expressed in accordance with the constitution."

WOMEN GET LABOR JOBS

Admitted to Inspectorships Under Immigration Bureau

Washington, Sept. 30.—Women will be admitted on equal terms with men hereafter to inspectorships under the Immigration Bureau to deal with matters peculiarly affecting women and children, according to the reorganization policy announced yesterday by the Labor Department.

A woman's section of the bureau will be established under Dr. Kathryn M. Herring, special immigrant inspector, and a civil service examination in which preference will be given women for appointment as inspectors.

HYLAN ASKS 'DRYS' TO PROVE CHARGES

Invites Anderson to Give Facts on Nonenforcement of Prohibition

COURT RETURNS BOOZE CAR

New York, Sept. 30.—William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, has been invited by Mayor Hylan to appear before David Hirschfeld, commissioner of accounts, and present facts to back up statements he made to the mayor in a letter that the city administration is lax in enforcing the prohibition law. The mayor ordered a subpoena issued if Anderson fails to appear.

In his letter to Mayor Hylan, Mr. Anderson said a Philadelphia newspaper published an expose of "conditions showing violation of the liquor law in New York city, which makes clear it could not exist without official connivance or worse." Mr. Anderson also said "it shows that the police of New York city are involved."

"There is no effort apparently on the part of any responsible officials of the great city," the letter continued, "to enforce the state law on the liquor question as a measure of practical cooperation with the federal authorities."

Baltimore, Sept. 30.

"Where an automobile is used for transportation of liquor in violation of the Volstead act in New York city, which makes the transaction a commercial enterprise, it is just grounds for the forfeiture of the machine. Where, however, it is shown there is no commercial intent on the part of the owner, the court will consider that sufficient grounds for returning the machine."

That decision, the first judicial construction of the clause of the Volstead act dealing with forfeitures of machines to the government, was made yesterday by Judge Ross in the United States Court in considering the charges against

Trolley Hits Truckload of Ford Workers in Detroit

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 30.—(By A. P.)—Three men were reported dying in a hospital at Dearborn early today and sixteen others were injured, some seriously, as a result of a collision shortly after midnight of a motortruck and a Detroit United Railway interurban car. The accident occurred just outside the town of Dearborn. The truck was carrying Ford tractor plant workers to their homes. Only a few of them, it was said, escaped injury.

WILSON TO RETURN SHEEP

White House Flock is Rounded Up for Journey to Native Farm

Washington, Sept. 30.—The last of thirteen others were rounded up yesterday by the White House flock of sheep to the shipyard back to the farm where they were born.

Some already had been disposed of, but the bulk of the flock, by President Wilson's orders, was to be returned to William Woodward, Belair, Md., who sent the sheep to the White House in wartime, when the lawns needed trimming and wool was in demand.

British Mine Conference Fails

London, Sept. 30.—(By A. P.)—Representatives of the owners of coal mines and of miners have thus far failed to reach an agreement relative to wages, the principal question involved in the threat of the miners to strike. A conference was held at the Board of Trade yesterday, but nothing definite was done.

STEINWAY PIANOS

Leadership

Nearly a hundred years Steinway pianos have been the foremost musical instruments of the whole world; the model of pianomaking since pianos were seriously considered for solo work or thought possible in orchestral use; the only instrument acceptable to the greater artists as interpretive mediums; and finally they have been so made that all the essential elements of the artist's piano have been built within the smaller sizes, so that every home may have a piano of which the most eminent pianist would be justly proud. This is a new phase of great leadership that has made the Steinway a popular piano as well as an exclusive art work.

You will better understand this Steinway dominance on reading "Steinways of Today." A copy will be sent on request.

Steinway pianos may be bought on monthly payments

WILL REPRESENT CANADA

Ambassador Geddes to Look After Interests in United States

Washington, Sept. 30.—The appointment of a special Canadian minister plenipotentiary to the United States is understood to have been indefinitely postponed. Canada's interests in this country thus will be left in the hands of Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador, who because of his long residence in that British commonwealth is regarded by the Canadians as having full personal knowledge of the aims and needs of their country.

An element which has been considered in connection with direct Canadian representation in Washington is that Australia, South Africa and other British colonies and dominions might desire similar representation. In fact, there was a movement in some of the colonies for such representation, and the British foreign office was said to have taken the view that inefficiency might result from having several colonial ministers in the United States.

PHILADELPHIAN HONORED

Shepherds' Convention Elects Chas. Goodwin Supreme Commander

Reading, Pa., Sept. 30.—The supreme convention of the Shepherds of Bethlehem, at which ten states were represented, adjourned today with the installation of officers. They included Charles Goodwin, of Philadelphia, supreme commander; Anna Armstrong, of Camden, N. J., supreme vice commander.

The next convention will be held in Atlantic City.

Wants a Woman in Council

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:—There is a fine chance for the local politicians of all factions to prove the sincerity of their interest in the voters, the women who have just been enfranchised, and who are manifesting a praiseworthy attention to their new rights and to public affairs.

A vacancy in Council has been created by the death of William E. Finley, of the First district. It is a vacancy that should not be filled by a political hack, but by a woman of the caliber of the late Finley, a woman who would be a credit to the public and a benefit to the city.

The opportunity is open to both the women and the politicians, and a woman in Council would not be out of place. Many matters come before that body which women are even better qualified to deal than most men. A woman member would be an influence for civic betterment, and such influence is not to be inconsiderately rejected at this time, when so much is needed to strengthen the administration in the work of better municipal government.

The people of the First district can afford to push the politicians aside and elect a capable woman to represent them. It is not for the novelty of it, but because it would be a credit to the district, a benefit to the public and a just recognition of the new citizenship.

The Phoenix Park Murder

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:—Sir—Kindly give date of the Phoenix Park murder, the names of those who were killed and how many men, with their names, were executed for same. This is to settle a dispute as to particulars, which both sides have agreed to leave you to decide. Hoping you will kindly oblige and thanking you in advance.

Philadelphia, September 27, 1920.

Lord Frederick Cavendish, chief secretary to the lord lieutenant of Ireland, and Thomas Henry Burke, under secretary, were assassinated by the Fenians in Phoenix Park, Dublin, May 8, 1882. There were fourteen persons implicated in the murder. The following five men were sentenced to death for the crime: Joseph Brady, Fagan, Daniel Curley, Thomas Caffrey and Timothy Kelly. A man named Fitzharris received a life sentence. Joseph Mulvey, Daniel Delaney, McCaffrey, O'Brien and Moroney were sentenced to ten years, and Thomas Doyle received a sentence of five years' penal servitude.

Yard vs. Meter Again

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:—Sir—In your issue of Friday there appears a letter signed by Samuel S. Dale, referring to the yard and the meter. His contention that the yard is a fundamental standard is manifestly erroneous, as I am sure that he would be unable to define a yard in an intelligible way without using the meter as a standard. To question the ruling of the bureau of standards as to a measure in matters concerning measurements, and the Supreme Court. However they appear to any individual, the decisions in matters concerning measurements, and would undoubtedly be so accepted in any court.

Mr. Dale need have no concern as to the claim that the yard is a certain proportion of a meter, being propounded for the metric system. Whether the standard is expressed in terms of yards or meters does not alter the fact that the meter is a real thing that can be determined at any time, whereas the yard is nothing but 3600-3937 of a meter.

The present meter was established in the latter part of the eighteenth century by a commission appointed by the French Government, and is one ten-millionth of the meridian passing between Dunkirk and Barcelona; and this is a definite length, a standard with which other measures may be compared. The English yard was, of course, in existence for a long time prior to the establishment of this standard, and was in no way altered. As far as the writer knows, there is no similar standard in nature to which the yard may be compared; and for this reason the bureau of standards wisely adopted a definition of the yard which did not depend upon some arbitrarily selected and artificially created standard.
